The following Account was by some Accident omitted in most of our public Papers, and as many of our Readers think it deserving more public notice than it has had, we are desir'd: tho'

a little out of Time to insert it.

GRENADA June 15.

ON Tuesday last, came on to be tried, in his Majesty's court of common pleas, in the island of Grenada, an action of trover, brought by Ninian Home, Esq; against the deputy provost-marshal, for a negro levied on, in pursuance of an act passed by the legislature of this island as at present constituted, three of his Majesty's new adopted subjects, having been introduced into the assembly, and permitted to sit and vote,

in consequence of instructions, for that purpose, transmitted by the Earl of Hillsborough, to our late commander in chief, Lieutenant Governor Fitz Maurice, in direct violation, as was contended, of the fundamental laws of England and of the constitution of this colony. This action was, it seems, brought merely to determine this great question; and, as the council for the defendant did not plead a special justification, under the act, it was agreed by both parties, that the special matter should be given in evidence, under the defendant's plea of the general issue; so that by this mode, the validity of the act came before an independent and unbiased jury of British subjects. The King's proclamation of the 7th of October, 1763, and the commission under the great seal of England, given to his Excellency General Melvill, fixing the constitution of this colony, were given in evidence on the part of the plaintiff; and, on the part of the defendant, Lord Hillsborough's instructions, dispensing with the laws of England (which had been assured to the inhabitants of this colony by the above-

said proclamation) and altering the constitution of the colony, and, in consequence thereof, admitting the election and sitting of the new adopted Roman Catholic subjects.

Besides the arguments, which the proclamation and commission and instructions and settlement of the constitution afforded, it was much insisted on, upon the part of the plaintiff, that the King's natural born subjects in this colony, anterior to the proclamation and commission aforesaid, had a right to the enjoyment of and benefit derived from the laws of England, under which they were born, and by which their allegiance to their most gracious Sovereign is governed; and many learned authorities were quoted to this purpose. It was contended, on the other hand, that the King had a right, by his prerogative, to dispense with his proclamation and instructions to his Governor, which they denied to be a permanent charter to the colony; and that, as the penal statutes of England, they alleged, were not in force in this government, there was no illegality in allowing persons to be elected and to sit in the assembly, without taking the test; in short, that the King had not precluded himself by his said proclamation and instructions, from governing by his prerogative only. The conduct of the Minister, respecting this colony, underwent many severe strictures; and, after a fruitless attempt to induce the jury, to find a special verdict, by which means this cause would have been finally determined by the Privy-

Council, the majority of the court refused to give sanction to such a manœuvre; and the jury, after mature deliberation, having remained out four hours, brought in a general verdict for the plaintiff, to the great satisfaction of the people, which they manifested in the evening, by bonfires, illuminations, and other public demonstrations of joy. The council for the plaintiff were Messrs. Piggott, father and son; and for the defendant, Mr. Attorney-general and Mr. Sharp.

The jury were John Lefely, Esq; foreman, Messrs. George

Fitz-Gerald, William Wallace, Roderick Williamson,

Harry Muaro, Alexander Scott, Henry Godfrey, Thomas

Bennett, Alexander Bartlet, James Christie, Henry Pelschier, and Peter Pegus.

We think that the decision of this important cause, from the arguments made use of during its discussion, which was managed in a very able and learned manner, ought to give the highest satisfaction, as well to the new adopted as to the natural-born subjects; as our right to be governed by law, was fully established, and the doctrine of the King's having a right to govern us by his prerogative fully resuted.

[The following Piece having made a great Stir in Boston, and been voted by the Council a scandalous Libel, is inserted at the Desire of some of our Readers.]

From Bingley's Journal, of June 29, 1771.
To the Earl of HILLSBOROUGH.

My Lord,
COULD experience teach you wisdom, or time remove the very unjust resentment you have conceived against his Majesty's most loyal, and most deserving subjects, of the Massachusetts-Bay, you would not have given fresh cause of discontent in that province. The people however unsatisfied were silent. Why then, my Lord, did you repeat that odious grievance of removing their Assembly from their ancient, most convenient, and most desirable place of session, to one entirely the reverse? is there one good end of government, that can possibly be answered by a measure totally nugatory, but in subjecting the Assembly to much inconvenience, and in gratifying your pique, and that of Governor BERNARD, against the people of Boston, whom neither your threats could awe, nor your arts could seduce from boldly asserting their rights? Does so pitiful a resentment, and the yet more pitiful gratification of it, become the rank, or the place you fill?

But, my Lord, this measure is not only irritating and impolitic, but illegal. The Assembly have fully proved it such; and all the art and sophistry of your Governor, could not evade the force of their arguments. It is true, indeed, not only this, but every act of your administration gives full proof, that to act conformable to law was never in your inclination, or intention. In a mind not totally unprincipled, the signal services of that province would have outweighed their late opposition to the usurpations of government. Their gallant storm and capture of Louisbourg, in the year 1745; their manning Admiral Saunders's fleet, so as to effectuate those operations, to which we owe the important reduction of Quebec, and of the conquest of Canada; their defence of his Majesty's garrison of Annapolis, and of all Nova-Scotia, in the war preceding the last; with many eminent instances of their zeal and ability to serve his Majesty and this country, are buried in oblivion; while every opposition to government, however justified by the clearest principles of the constitution, is noted down, and marked for vengeance. This is the method your Lordship takes of securing their future services to the crown, and their attachment to the House of Hanover. The success will certainly be adequate to the means. But even, if the present generation had no defects to plead, the rights for which they are contending against your usurpation, for Parliament is only instrumental, are less than they would have merited through the unexampled hardships their ancestors endured in conquering the savage country.

Your Lordship must have seen the detail of their sufferings in the history of your very obsequious Governor Mr. Hutchinson. He indeed has betrayed those liberties, which he has taught us were so dearly purchased, for the pitiful ambition of being a Governor, under such a Minister as your Lordship. He may now judge, whether there are sweets in power and gratified ambition to sooth the anguish of recollecting, that he has betrayed his country, and ruined his character forever. The perfidy too, of Mr. Oliver, has its reward. To do you justice, it is not your Lordship's fault, if a single eminent malefactor in America is undignified and unrewarded. The account of Mr. Oliver's promotion is worthy the attention of the public. It will shew to what a consummate degree corruption has arrived, under your Lordship's American Administration.

Mr. Oliver was Secretary to the Council, when the late memorable military massacre was perpetrated in Boston. To take off the horror of this bloody business, it was the object of administration, and of its creatures, to make it suspicious that an insurrection was intended by the people. The Secretary, therefore, framed some minutes of Council, in which he prepared to their purpose what one of the Members had said, and having secretly sworn to the truth of them, he, in concert with the present guiltless Governor, dispatched them, by no less a personage than a Commissioner of the Customs, to Lord Hillsborough. — My Lord, was it with this happy mixture of perjury and baseness, that you appeased the resentment our righteous Sovereign manifested for the barbarous murder of so many of his subjects? When an account of these minutes and this affidavit returned, for the sending them had been profoundly secret, the Council unanimously resolved, and separately made oath, that what was there minuted, did not pass in Council. Mr. Oliver stood recorded on the Council books as a perjured traitor, and—can it be believed? he was immediately appointed his Majesty's Lieutenant Governor of the Province!

It is obvious, my Lord, and you have no doubt considered, that, in the hands of such men, government cannot fail of being respectable, and beloved among the people. That such a temper in America may eventually be desirable, will appear to your Lordship from the following anecdote; a little more than a century past, when Charles the Second was driven from the throne, the colony of Virginia sent to offer him a refuge, and proclaimed him King before his restoration in this country. The revolutions of empires are in the hand of God, and we may well hope, that the present pious Court will never experience the misfortunes that overwhelmed that of Charles the First. But, my Lord, what has happened may happen again, and, in the most distant apprehension of such a calamity, it cannot but administer great consolation to your Lordship, that by your singular management the deposed Monarch would be secure of finding a most cordial reception in America.

JUNIUS AMERICANUS.

L O N D O N, August 20.
THE Lords in the opposition have in one of their protests declared, that there has been a systematical plan carried on, during this reign, for rendering the House of Commons odious, and the House of Lords contemptible, for the purpose of finally throwing all power into the hands of the crown. The same scheme was adopted in the reign of Charles the second, of lascivious memory. Lord Clifford proposed in the House of Lords a perpetual fund, which was to be applied to the advancement of the prerogative, and the degradation of parliament. The King and the Duke of York attended in the House, in order to countenance the design. The Lords who were in the secret, staring at one another, and anxiously meditating upon the fate of England, remained in an awful silence. At length, Lord Shaftsbury, who had promised to co-operate in the design, in order to have a better opportunity of revenging himself and his country, stood up, and clearly proved, that the scheme would have no other end but that of sending the royal family once more upon their travels, without any hopes of return. While he was speaking, the Duke of York whispered the King, "What a rogue have you of a Lord Chancellor!" The King briskly replied, "God's fifth! what a fool have you of a Lord Treasurer!" The King's brother only attended last year when the vital stab was given to the constitution at midnight. The King was dandling his children.

Aug. 21. France was never in a more distressed condition than at present. Her repeated failures in supporting the foreign credit have entirely locked up every public Coffer in Europe from her reach. London, Amsterdam, Genoa, Leghorn, all have refused to advance any more sums to that nation, until there is some prospect of a recovery of their former loans. In this dilemma, the French have now recourse to economy in their revenues for such supplies as they shall want. The conquest of Corsica greatly drained their Treasury of the ready specie, and is daily adding to their debts. For this reason, they have come to a resolution to get it off their hands at any rate. Spain and Sicily were applied to, but it is said were obliged to reject the proposal for want of money. The next offer was made to the Duchy of Parma, where the bargain at present stands.

The late celebrated Dr. Brown having courted a lady for many years, though unsuccessfully, during which time it had ever been his custom, when in company, to drink the lady's health before that of any body; but he was observed one evening to omit it; a gentleman reminding him of it, said, "Come Doctor, drink the lady, your toast." The doctor replied, "I have toasted her for these twice seven years, and I cannot make her Brown, so I'll toast her no longer."

As a proof of the internal weakness of France, that proud nation hath been obliged to reduce her military to 90,000 effective men.

An inquiry is making after the person who made the dye, by which several halfpence have been struck, having Britannia on the one side, and on the other a head, with an hatchet over it.

Sept. 23. Edward Manwaring, Esq; [who was tried and acquitted, at Boston, on a charge for murder, in firing on the populace on the 5th of March, 1770] who has been a strenuous supporter of Administration [that is, the measures of the British Ministry] in America, is, we hear, to be appointed a Member of the Board of Commissioners there, in the room of John Robinson, Esq; who, it is said, is to be appointed to the Chief Justiceship of North-Carolina, vacant by the removal of Mr. Howard, to the Chief Justiceship of New-York.

Extract of a letter from Paris, dated August 27.
"The 6th of this month an edict was published, imposing an additional tax of twenty sols on the head of every hog or sow brought into Paris, for the consumption of the inhabitants. This edict has occasioned many puns, witticisms, and ballads, which, however, the Police took no notice of; the prisons being already as full as the hospitals, it was judged best to be sparing in this article, as well as in many others."

"As the hogs are not killed in Paris, but brought to town in cart-loads, without their garbage, and ready for sale, one of the undertakers for supplying the town was driving six loaded carts into Paris, but had the precaution first to cut off the heads, which he had left at home. When he arrived at the barrier, the Clerks demanded the new duty; he presented them the edict, which specified the heads only; he bid them search, and if they found one single head, he consented they should seize the whole. The Clerks laughed at the joke, but insisted that the hogs should not be brought in until the edict was put in execution, and the new tax paid. The undertaker sent for an Attorney, and deposited the duty, which the Attorney protested against, in order to prevent their disposing of the money, until such time as the law should pronounce concerning the validity or invalidity of the edict. We wait with impatience the decision of this affair, which excites the curiosity of the public."

Extract of a Letter from Parma.
"Certain advice is said to be received from Naples, that the King has suspended the sale of the late possessions of the Religious Orders expelled his kingdom; and it is reported the French Ministry have forbid any changes to be made in the habitations formerly occupied by the Jesuits, from which it is conjectured they are to be reinstated in their former privileges."

Letters from Paris by Saturday's mail mention an insurrection said to have happened in Besancon.

While the British Ministry are dozing over the information offered to be given them concerning the late dreadful conflagration at Portsmouth, the Court of Petersburg are so satisfied that the many fires, by which their Dock-yards, &c. have been destroyed, are not to be attributed to the Act of God, that we are assured they are making the most diligent researches into the causes of them, and from the discoveries which have already been made, it is not doubted but they shall soon be able to trace them up to their proper source, the great love of their old and very affectionate friends the French. The same advice adds, that to frustrate the designs of their enemies in thus destroying their navies, prodigious quantities of timber, hemp, tar, and other naval stores, are daily sent down by the Wolga, to the factories of Cronstadt and Revel, to repair the damages done among the Russian fleets at those places.

The Government have offered Mr. Banks and Dr. Solander two frigates to prosecute their researches and discoveries in another voyage round the world; which these two ingenious naturalists, have accepted; and propose setting out early next spring round the Cape of Good Hope for India.

The accounts from the second Russian army say, that after the conquest of the Crimea, a great part of Circassia has submitted to the Russians, inasmuch that the Russians are entirely masters of the navigation in the Black Sea, and in the Propontis from Azoff down even to Constantinople, and on the eastward to the mouth of the Danube.

From the MASSACHUSETTS SPY, Nov. 21.
Wednesday Evening, Nov. 20.

Mr. THOMAS,
I HAVE just received the following paper, by the hands of a deputy sheriff, which I am advised to lay before the public for their contemplation. I know not the design of it, nor why it is sent to me rather than to any body else. Your publishing it, therefore, in your next paper will oblige your humble servant,
J. GREENLEAF.

Province of Massachusetts-Bay.
"To Joseph Greenleaf of Boston, in said Province, Esq;
"YOU are required to appear before the Governor and Council, at the Council chamber in Boston, on Tuesday the tenth day of December next, at ten of the clock in the forenoon, then and there to be examined touching a certain paper called the Massachusetts Spy, published the 14th day of November, 1771; whereof you are not to fail at your peril."

"Dated Boston, the 16th day of November, 1771.

PHILADELPHIA, December 9.
The following is a copy of a letter from the unhappy Mr. O'Neil, (who lately committed an act of suicide) to Bingham Elkhon, Esq; No. 3, Suffolk-Street, Charing-Cross, London.

"Dear Friend,
"I am sorry to part with you in so abrupt a manner; it must be done, Providence has decreed it. It is a folly I am going to commit, I see it in its proper light, but I am weak, I have not strength to dispel the gloomy and melancholy thoughts that continually hover about me. This is no new invention; I have had it ever since I landed in England; I discovered it to you one night in my cups, you behaved as a friend; and a worthy one; you strove to dissuade me of so vast an enterprise; I seemed in appearance convinced of my error, put on a smiling countenance, but to no purpose; I never set the resolution out of my head; with this intention I went to the country, but never found a proper opportunity to put it in practice, and before-hand wrote a few letters to the very few Friends I have. The day you went to London I determined should be my last, but your carrying the key of your trunk prevented me, the pistols being locked up in it; this was the reason that carried me yesterday to your lodgings in search of them, and this the reason I wrote to you this morning so plausible a letter, in order to get them; now I have got them, now I am going to put an end to this life. Alas! dear friend, I must die! if I do not now, I must in a few days hence; the all-seeing Providence, when he sent me into the world, foresaw my end. Scripturarians, Divines, &c. will all condemn me to hell, for putting an end to my own life, let them talk and bark, my reason convinces me to the contrary. Did God ever create a man to be damned? No. Wherefore did he then send me to the world, when he foresaw my end would be such as deserved damnation. This makes me easy, this makes me depart contentedly, it is a folly to think that men must be cracked, or not composit to put an end to themselves; no such thing; I am as much in my senses now, as ever I was in my life: you may reply, why then you never was in your senses: I have presumption enough to be of a contrary opinion; so have fools, you may say. Enough of this."

"The trifle I owe you'll not get at present: I have wrote to Mr. Cuffery of Lisbon, to pay it to your order, who will instantly do it. I beg, my dear friend that you will see me put under ground; this is all I request of you. I hope you will meet with all the success in the world, a long and happy life, a friend, and a good bottle to give him, and, after all, a happy death. I beg you will insert this unhappy circumstance in the papers; it may, perhaps, hinder some young men of coming to the same end; it will be an example to them, likewise an advice to part with much liberty, if possible; it was brought me to my friend!"

From the ALBANY GAZETTE.
ALBANY, December 9.

We have sometime ago received Intelligence from New-York that the Dutch Ministers who were convened there, have amicably composed their late Disensions, concerning the Independency of their Church in America, and that they are likely to become an Independent Church, endowed with all the Powers necessary to propagate and govern a Religious Society.

We are credibly informed, that His Excellency, the Governor, has received Instructions from his Majesty, to dissolve the General Assembly of this Province at their next Meeting, if they will not admit the Honourable Judge Livingston to sit as a Member of the House.

NEW-YORK December 19.

At about 3 o'clock, in the Morning, of Friday, the 6th Instant, a Fire was discovered in the Store of Mr. Samuel Mabbitt, of Dutchess County, and not more than 12 Miles from the unfortunate Messis. Reeds, which soon consumed the same with almost all the Merchandise contained therein, and the Flames having communicated to Mr. Mabbitt's Dwelling House, it was almost consumed with all his Furniture, the whole Loss, as it is supposed, will amount to about £. 6000.

The Captains Lord and Chapel, from New-London for this Port, on the Night of Thursday the 5th Instant, were cast away in the Sound; the former at Loyd's Neck, who 'tis thought may be got off again; the latter at Sataket, the Vessel entirely lost, but the Cargo will be saved.

Capt. Hodge from Coracoa, 8 Days ago, to the Southward of Cape Henlopen, about 20 Leagues from the Land, came across the Wreck of a Vessel, which he imagined was a Ship of about 250, or 300 Tons; it was mostly under Water, but by what he saw of it, the same appeared not to have been long in that Condition, as the Iron was quite free of Rust.

Captain Couper, in 36 Days from the Bay, informs us, that the Ship St. Andrew, Capt. Poffgrove, from that Place for Philadelphia, was cast away at the Triangles, about the 23d of Oct. last; that the Vessel would be lost, but the Cargo saved.

On Saturday last was launched at the Ship-Yards, in this City, the Snow Mercury, Capt. Robert Dillon, Commander; built by Mr. James Seaman, of this Place: She is intended for the fifth Packet Boat between this and Falmouth, and is allowed by Judges to be the best Vessel of her Burthen that ever was built in this Province. She will have the best Accommodations for Passengers of any Packet on this Station; and will sail with all Expedition, in order to bring out the next April Mail.

The same Evening was launched at the Ship-Yards also, the Ship Hannah, built by Messrs. Totten and Crossfield: She is 300 Tons burthen, a complete Vessel, to be commanded by Capt. Mitchell, and designed for the Irish Trade.

Thursday last the Body of Ann Morris, the Wife of John Morris, was found drowned in one of the Vats of the Tanyard belonging to Mr. Daniel Penett, in the Swamp. The Coroner's Inquest brought in their Verdict, as no Marks of Violence appeared on the Body, that she came accidentally by her Death.

In the late Snow Storm, we had on Wednesday last Week, two Men belonging to his Majesty's Ship Deal Castle, in attempting to get on Board the Ship in a small Boat, were drove on the Long-Island Shore, where one of them was the next Day found perished by the Severity of the Weather.

On Thursday Night the fifth Inst. three Men, in an Oyster Boat, belonging to the New-City, coming from Blue-Point, in the Snow Storm, they endeavoured to get ashore near Shrewsbury, and leave the Vessel, to shelter themselves from the Weather, but not finding a convenient Landing, and being Strangers to the Place, they resolved upon wading to the Shore, which they reached. One of them, named John Barns, was so benumbed with Cold that he could not accompany them, and they were obliged to leave him on the Beach after covering him as well as they could, where, in all Probability he perished in the Snow.

Captain Benjamin Lindsey, who arrived here on Saturday Night, from Providence, in Rhode-Island, informs, That three Vessels were cast ashore at Nantucket, in the late severe Snow Storm one of which was a large Sloop belonging to Halifax, the Capt. and Mate both perished with the Cold after they got ashore, and were found and buried at Nantucket: That the Crew belonging to her were nine in all, six of whom got safe to Nantucket, but the other one could not be found, so it is more than probable he was either drowned or perished with the Cold: It was imagined the Vessel would be entirely lost.—That a Sloop from Rhode-Island, for this Port, commanded by Capt. French, and loaded with Flax-Seed, was ashore on Fisher's-

Island: the Vessel may be got off, but her Cargo is all damaged.—That a large Schooner, commanded by Captain Perkins, of Norwich from Rhode-Island, bound for the West Indies, was ashore on Long-Island, near Oyster-Point, had a Boy drowned out of her, and it was thought the would be entirely lost.—That a Schooner from New-London, for this Port, loaded with Molasses, was ashore at Setauket, and the People were cutting the Vessel down, in order to save the Cargo, but had no Hopes of getting her off again:—That a small Sloop also belonging to New-London, was ashore near Huntington, which was entirely stove to Pieces, and three Men drowned out of her, who were taken up on the Shore and buried.—That several other small Craft were ashore on both Sides of the Sound, most of which it is thought will be lost.

We hear from the Wall-Kill, in this Province, that the Rev. M. JOHN BLAIR, died there on the 8th Instant, in the 51st Year of his Age. He was a Gentleman of an excellent Understanding, which he had carefully improved; and was justly esteemed a great Divine, a judicious and instructive Preacher, and an eminent Example of the various, divine and social Virtues that constitute the Christian Temper, and adorn the Christian Character. His Death is greatly lamented by all Denominations in that County, especially by the affectionate People to whom he ministered.

The Sloop Fanning, Capt. John Hoffman, from North-Carolina, with a Cargo of that Country Produce, bound here, but blown off, to the Eastward, was in Stormy Weather on Thursday the 5th Instant, driven on shore at Britton's Neck, without the Light-House, near New-Port, where the Vessel was beat to Pieces, and Part of the Cargo damaged.

Tuesday last the Ship Ann, Capt. Patrick Miller, arrived here in 8 Weeks and two Days from St. Ubes, on his Passage, the 16th Nov. Lat. 32, 45, Long. 66, spoke the Brig Robert, Capt. Chris. Gale, 6 Days from N. Carolina, for Cadiz, all well; last Saturday spoke with a Schooner from Newbury, in N. England, bound for Virginia, the Captain informed, that he came to an Anchor under Cape Charles, when a violent Gale of Wind obliged him to part with his Cables, and was blown off the Coast 24 Days, which rendered him scarce of Provisions, and he was putting into Amboy for a Supply.

The Ship Prince of Wales, Capt. McKenzie, was to sail for this Place, in a few Days after Capt. Miller.

[Neither the Philadelphia nor Bolton Papers, to the 12th Instant, contain any Advices from abroad but what we have had.]

The Boston Papers contain many interesting Pieces (on the present Measures of Government)—which show the People in general of that Colony to be in a State of great Uneasiness.

N. B. Milliners and shop-keepers who intend to purchase after his departure, will please to direct for FROMBERGER and SIEMON, in Second-Street, Philadelphia; their orders will be obeyed, at as cheap rates as in London.

POET'S CORNER.

ON CONTENT.

HAPPY the Man (but ah, how few we find)
Who feels the Pleasure of a tranquil Mind;
Who meets all Blessings in Content alone,
Nor knows a Station happier than his own;
No anxious Cares disturb his peaceful Breast,
With Life content, and with Contentment blest;
No Pangs he feels, to break his calm Repose,
No Envy fears,—for he no Envy knows;
To Man still faithful, and to God resign'd,
His Body subject to its Lord, the Mind:
He must be good,—for surely Heav'n ne'er meant,
Without strict Virtue to bestow Content.
'Tis not the Glory false Ambition brings,
The Wealth of Misers, or the Pow'r of Kings;
Not all the fleeting Joys by Man possess'd,
Can give the Earthly Frame that heav'nly Guest;
Whate'er the Muse, of Love or Glory sings,
Virtue alone the sacred Stranger brings.

QUEENSBURY, November 11, 1771.

TO BE SOLD, between this and MAY next,
A VERY valuable tract of land, containing about 2000 acres, lying in Orange county, in the province, and about 50 miles from the city of New-York, and two and half from the North-river, at the landing on the West side of Salisbury-Island, to which there is a good wagon road from the said land; which is extraordinarily well timbered and watered, and is in general as good for grain and meadow, as any in the county, especially for meadow, in which it excels, and has sufficient cleared to winter 25 or 30 head of cattle, besides horses, and about 200 acres more may be made:
There is also cleared, a considerable quantity of plow land, in which about 10 or 12 bushels of wheat and rye have been sown this season, the whole in good fence. There is during the summer season, a very fine range, which can never be obstructed, for any number of cattle, on the said land; and also the following buildings and improvements, viz. a good new framed, and two other houses, with a cellar, &c. a large garden, a good young bearing orchard, of the best grafted fruit, a good saw-mill, with plenty of water, and a vast quantity of white oak and other timbers convenient to it, which if properly attended, by persons acquainted with the sawing business, would produce, free of all costs, at least £. 200 a year. Whoever inclines to purchase the said tract, or half of it, may apply to the subscriber on the premises, who will give an indisputable title for the same, and also make known the conditions of payment.

very good spinner, and washer, and understands all kinds of house work, or taking care of children; is sober, honest, careful and diligent, and as healthy and capable of work as can be expected, considering her age. She has plenty of good clothes, can read, and is very religiously inclined: The owner would choose to dispose of her to a person who would not use her with harshness and severity, nor put her to hard service, beyond her strength. Inquire of the Printer.
